OUR ALMA MATER—AN ASSOCIATION OF A LIFE TIME

PLEDGE

[Below is given the pledge taken by every final year student before leaving the College—Editors]

As an engineer, I shall participate in none but honest enterprise and I shall give the utmost of my performance in response to the call of duty. I shall strive to preserve the good name of any engineer whom I know to be conscientious but I shall not hesitate to expose anyone, who indulges in practices contrary to the national interest.

To my fellows, I pledge in the same full measure I ask of them, integrity and fair dealing, respect and tolerance, and spirited devotion to the dignity and standards of our profession.

To my countrymen, I pledge dedicated service, irrespective of race, caste, colour or community and I shall endeavour to uphold the secular traditions of India.

To my country, I pledge I shall serve her with the best in me and I shall try to enhance her reputation, dignity and pride.

To my Alma-mater, I pledge that I shall uphold its name and dedicate my life to the service of humanity.

MESSAGE

This is an Age of Engineering, especially so for developing countries like India, which must race forward to the economic front. There cannot therefore be too many engineers, nor the engineers can contribute too much to win the race, with the expanding population and persisting poverty in the country. Every new graduate who has been fortunate enough to receive the qualifying training and knowledge owes it to his country and to himself to devote his life for building up a new India, with a reasonable living standard for the coming generations.

I am sure the new graduates passing out of the Punjab Engineering College will shoulder the task bravely and dicharge it with honour and distinction.

I am glad to learn that Punjab Engineering College is publishing a special Souvenir issue. On the eve of their leaving this Institution, I send my best wishes to the passing out graduates. Our country has a great need of engineers and technologists. There is great scope for able and talented men and women to serve the country. I hope the graduates of this Institution will devote themselves with ability and integrity in the cause of development.

I am glad to know that the Punjab Engineering College, Chandigarh, brings out annually a Souvenir in commemoration of the passing out of graduates. This effort on the part of students is highly commendable and, I trust, will be a measure of their cooperative enterprise. Both as a citizen of the country and the architect of its progress, the engineer has a special responsibility which this Souvenir will, I hope, impress upon the new graduates who will, after the academic work, enter upon a new life. I wish this endeavour of the students of Punjab Engineering College, every success.

CHIEF ENGINEER (NORTH)
PUNJAB, PWD, B&R BRANCH

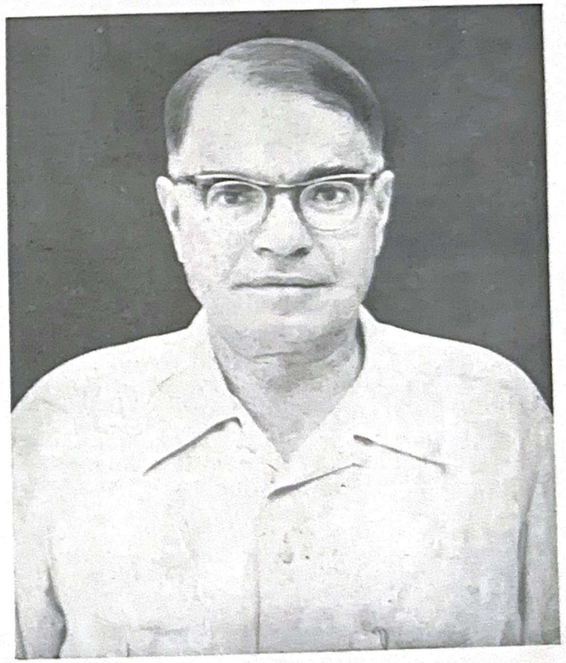

It is with great pleasure that I, who too was ushered into this noble profession of national builders from the spring board of the same Institution of pre-independence days, wish the students who shall be coming out of the Institution with graduateship and post-graduateship attainments a happy and prosperous entry into the profession and all success in their future career. For them, the age of greater professional responsibilities is now to start when they will have to practice in nation building activity the knowledge which they have acquired at this great Institution of this fast advancing developing State. The Engineer has a very vital role to play in helping the country steer successfully through this era of national development and maintain its national prestige in the world set up, repelling any possible foreign aggression or evil designs directed towards us and the country eagerly looks forward to the technologists contributing their mite selflessly towards that great national effort. I, like others in the profession, have fervent hope that these young men will surely rise to the expectation and win laurels in the profession thereby amassing praiseful credit for the Engineering fraternity and this great parent Institution of ours. I conclude in wishing them once again illustrious success in their future career.

PRINCIPAL R. L. KHANNA

Young Graduates, you have had the privilege to spend four years in this college of Engineering which has many traditions to its credit. We have aimed that by the time you complete your course here, each one of you should not only be fully confident of your technical knowledge, but also confident of your healthy body and character. All the three achievements will be needed by you in the service of the motherland in coming years, whether you join Government Service or factories.

The future will have a test for you as well as for this respected institution. Your performance will show how far this Institution has succeeded in building those qualities in you, to the big family of engineers of which you will be proud members, and to this college which brought you up. I am confident each one of you, with your careful performance, will guarantee high reputation to all the above.

This is not the end of technical knowledge but a beginning for you. Lot of research in technical knowledge is going on fast all round. We have shown you the way how to make use of it and how to gain more. Do maintain the habit of keeping your technical knowledge uptodate by consulting libraries and latest journals on the subjects. Such a duty will be the best utility of your spare time and bring you pleasure and confidence and help you get forward. Even think of new ideas and put them to test. Keep your mind progressive.

Do maintain your fool proof health, which may not fail you in your hard duties even at odd hours and in unfavourable climates. Maintain your habit of daily physical exercise and control of diet. Temperance is essential for healthy life. Do have the courage to keep off so called friends politely who advise you otherwise.

You are builders and leaders of tomorrow. People working under you will expect much from you. You will have to set a personal example of sense of duty and responsibility, zeal and alertness, confidence and punctuality. I am sure, you will come up to their expectations. Any slip on your part, any unbecoming action will not be overlooked by people under you. So, be always on your guard.

Proper planning is necessary for success of every scheme entrusted to you. So make a habit of drawing out a plan in detail and in advance, using your knowledge and intelligence and consulting liberally others who know, may even they be your juniors. Much useful contribution has sometime been made by humble people in the line, who gained experience through years of loyal and honest service and who should be freely consulted and given their due credit.

Big jobs will be entrusted to you. The secret of success is not only your own hard, honest and sincere work but sincere cooperation from the Department also. You have to learn the art of winning cooperation of others to ensure success of your assignment. That type of cooperation is given by others only when they find you are sincere yourself (and not selfish), and you request them in a proper spirit. Stiff necks and snobbery do not pay in such situations. To earn others' cooperation, you have also to be ready to give cooperation to others.

In your future duty, you will have to get in touch with people above you, your comrades, as well as people below you and much of your success will depend on knowing how to behave with each group. You will have to realize that all people are not too good neither all people are too bad. Everybody is a mixture of good and bad points. You have, therefore, to understand the nature of the man, and adjust yourself in a way as to get the best out of him. If he is below you, you have to encourage and bring out his good points. You can, thus, reform or improve a comparatively less valuable man into a much more valuable man instead of insisting that he should be changed or transferred, for which occasion does not always exist. Regarding your superiors you have to also understand their view points and meet their expectation in work and quality by loyal and careful understanding. If the officer has some undesireable expectations which case is rare, he has to be tactfully put off, so that no misunderstanding or bitterness is created in his relations.

Lastly, none of your objectives will succeed unless you have an honest approach right through. You have thus to develop a complete faith in honest thinking and honest dealings. Those who have lost faith in honesty under certain wrong guidance or unworthy temptations are unfortunate. I expect you all to be fully on guard on this account. Let not temptation or wrong advice throw you off your feet. Rather you have also to take care that none of your fellow engineers tread the wrong track and thereby be a cause of bringing a bad name to the whole community of engineers. Thus you have not only to guarantee your own conduct but also are duty bound to take care of others who may think of going wrong. Then only this big community of engineers can maintain its reputation and its part in the development of the country, the responsibility of which falls on its shoulders.

Often we are tempted to criticize our society for its weaknesses and very seriously feel that these weaknesses should be removed quickly ; but we feel helpless. Critcizing by itself is no substitute for reforming. If you are determined to play your roll and to remove such weaknesses in your own small field, much would have been done to improve matters. This certainly is a practical way to mend matters and I hope you will give your full contribution to it.

You understand the great need of our country for engineers during the current emergency. We want to make our defences strong against certain neighbouring countries and for this purpose, I am sure you are keen to place your services at the disposal of the country and will be glad to offer yourselves for joining the armed-forces. The country needs you for its defence. I am glad that our final year students have offered themselves in quite large numbers and I expect that more would like to come forward.

In the end, I wish you a happy and healthy life full of prosperity and I trust that each one of you will play his part honourably to bring good name to his Alma-Mater. Do not forget us, but keep us informed of your progress and address.

—R. L. KHANNA

IN OUR GLORY

Let every man know that there is in the Northern India an institution which is known as Punjab Engineering College. Let him know that it sends out every year a batch of engineering graduates. And let him know that each and every person of that batch bears a mark which is no less glorious than any similar mark found anywhere.

We pray that this shall be our ideal.

We hope that we shall achieve it.

And we seek the blessings of our Alma-mater whose resounding sounds of "You be with God !" shall always lead and inspire us.

DR. P. G. DEO

Prof. of Applied Sciences

In the process of rapid industrialization of our country, the engineering profession to-day has attained a great importance. Well trained engineers can solidly contribute to the development of nation in the technical field. I am sure, the outgoing students of our college have before them immense opportunities in their respective fields to serve our country. With the training and discipline they have obtained in this college, I hope they will play their role with courage, confidence and honesty, bringing credit to their Alma Mater and paving the way for the bright future of our motherland.

I wish them every success in life.

—P. G. DEO

FROM THE OFFICER-IN-CHARGE

PROF. O. P. PURI

Officer-incharge PEC MAG

This is addressed to my young friends who are leaving their Alma-Mater to take up bigger responsibilities in life.

My only request to all of you on this occasion is not to lose sight of the goal. And the goal, which all of us have set before ourselves, is to help Mother-India regain its glory by banishing poverty and establishing a social system based on equality and justice for all. Any modern society is supported on the four pillars of scientific knowledge, technological skill, industrial growth and agricultural production. And we have to provide these pillars to our nation. You, as engineers, have a lot to contribute towards that end.

Glory is achieved by people who seek it and perfection is attained by those who practise. So let us practise our goal by devoting ourselves whole-heartedly to the profession which we have chosen for ourselves. Money and material gains come to engineers by way of return for their work. but let us not be satisfied by money alone. Let us derive out of our work the sense of satisfaction which is born only by an effort to achieve perfection. Let that sense of satisfaction guide us throughout the course of our life. Then at the end of our journey, we shall not lament and bemoan.

When you go out in the wide world, let not the temptations detract you from your path. Let not the wayward winds swerve you from your cherished goal. Let us design, create and be one with Vishwa-karman. Let us modernise and change the face of our country. And let us stand with pride amongst nations which are scientifically advanced, technologically superb and culturally glorious.

Towards that end the Alma-Mater and the country seek your co-operation. Let this Souvenir remind you of it during the course of your life. And let success be your companion throughout your journey to this goal.

Jai Bharat !

PROF. R. C. SHARMA

Professor of Civil Engg.

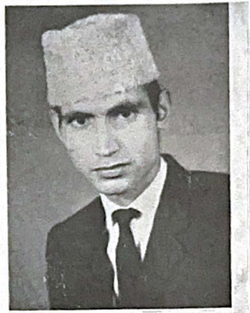

Research in a technical institution is very essential and should have more influence on undergraduate studies, post-graduate studies and industry. It is particularly helpful in the development and holding of the staff and the training of the post-graduate students. It will also help subsidizing research students when the research is financed by the industry. At present, in our country, there is need for interaction of engineering practice and research. It would also be desireable that large research institutions in the country should be linked with academic institutions which would make their results directly available to the rising generation. It is hoped that technical institutions in our country with excellent library and laboratory facilities for research will in due course, provide authoritative centres to which industry would begin to turn for the solution of its problems.

Message

I am glad indeed to congratulate the passing out graduates on the successful completion of their studies. There are tremendous tasks waiting to be called upon by them. They are, in fact, not finishing their education, they are just going to begin it in the right earnest. They are going to join the noble army of the builders of a new nation. They have ahead of them splendid opportunities. I am sure they will make full use of them.

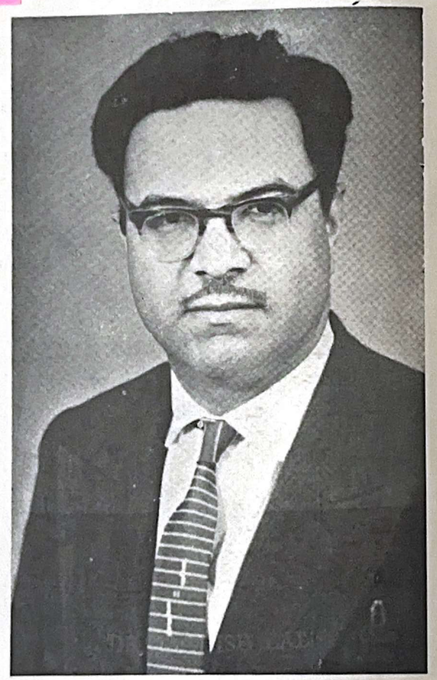

It is seen that some of our graduate engineers are not inclined to take to manual work with the result that they do not get to the root of the things. They like to become supervisors and administrators, leaving the detailed execution of the jobs to less qualified persons. This kind of attitude must be prevented. I hope the new graduates will keep away from it.

I wish them all success in life.

LEST WE FORGET

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime
And departing leave behind us
Foot prints on the sands of time."

Ever since the dawn of recorded history, about thirty billion human beings have been born. Only five thousands among them have distinguished themselves.

Let us see how many of us, if any, join this privileged rank.
